PENN STATE DELTA UPSILON
FALL 2023

DU'S PLACE AT PENN STATE

Consider Supporting Our Undergraduates!

I write to update you on the state of our fraternity. I will not bury the lead: the state of our fraternity is strong. There are 36 undergraduates, comprised of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, living in our handsome Chapter House for fall 2023, with a total membership of 76 or so.

CHAPTER HOUSE RESIDENCY

Our financial position is adequate and improving with short receivables and no debt. This allows us the flexibility to make investments as they are requested by each undergraduate class. We welcomed 10 associates for fall 2023—all have already signed a housing agreement for next year. The commitment from our undergraduate brothers is apparent.

As you will read in the undergraduate update on page 2, we have been working in tandem to improve and enhance our Chapter residence and grounds. We must make constant investments, many which are increasingly complex and costly.

THE GREEK OUTLOOK

The value proposition of fraternities at Penn State is strained, as the university banned fall freshman recruitment several years ago and Greek life is only one of many avenues for which undergraduates can network and make deep connections. Additionally, significant building in the State College area makes other housing options appealing.

Gone are the days when Beaver Hill was our main competition. Off-campus residences now boast amenities such as gyms, pools, golf simulators, and meticulously maintained community areas. Our Chapter's value proposition is to provide a fraternal experience that combines the best of scholastic, athletic, and professional development.

We must adjust our tack for the current environment. At our core, our alumni association is a provider of hospitality services in a brotherly manner. We offer scholarships, community involvement, meals, and networking and provide flexibility to intrepid brothers who study abroad or earn an internship.

ALUMNI ENGAGEMENT NEEDED

Disaffiliation or resignation of senior class members is increasingly a pressing concern—a common issue among fraternities.

It is in this area I ask for your attention.

A common retort offered to the advisory committee from resigning brothers is that they do not see the value in being an alumnus and paying dues senior year. At this point, they are spending their time at restaurants, clubs, interning, and looking beyond their time in college. We have also heard that the lack of present alumni is indicative that alumni status is not valuable.

I ask that you raise your hand to involve yourself with our undergraduate brothers. Offer advice on their budding careers, places to live in a new city, and the benefits of the ties that bind us together for generations. This can be as simple as a phone call with a brother interested in your career field or a 10-minute pop-in to the Chapter House when parking on the property for an event. Please contact any member of the alumni board for ways to be involved, either to ask how or to offer your time.

Our fraternity is well-positioned for the future. Thank you for all you do for our Chapter.

Fraternally,

William Woska, President

GUIDED BY DU VALUES

Stephen Balliet '88 on Personal and Professional Development

"Now more than ever, the future of Greek life at PSU and around the country is very tenuous. Undergraduates need more leadership and guidance than ever to be successful. If you have any desire to reconnect into the ideals that make DU amazing, please reach out."

Before Stephen Balliet '88 moved from Penn State Allentown to main campus, he was sold on the DU experience. High school best friend Mark Callihan '87 shared the fraternity's ideals with Steve and made him realize it was more than just a place to live on campus. Decades beyond college, Steve is glad to retain DU connections and the lifetime fraternal commitment.

BONDING THROUGH BROTHERHOOD

"DU had a small but strong foundation of brothers who were men of strong character," Steve said. He was proud to join the group and work alongside fellow young men eager to reach their full potential through DU. "Joining a fraternity that kept no secrets meant we were true to founding principles and completely transparent about who we are."

The fraternity's foundation of devoted alumni left a great impression on Steve in his youth, compelling him to stay connected with brothers like Mark, Jeffrey Shurock '86, Judd Mumford '88, and Jeff Dunkelberger '89 to this day.

PERSONAL GROWTH

Steve was elected corresponding secretary shortly after initiation, which led to his later service as Chapter president. "Being the leader of a Chapter filled with incredibly smart and opinionated men was a challenge, but it cemented my desire to continue my work in leadership and management."

After graduation, Steve worked seasonally (often with DU brothers) at Dorney Park and Wildwater Kingdom. Those long workdays, occasionally followed by early morning parties, inspired Steve to take a full-time job leading the park's food and beverage team.

Through industry networking, Steve was recruited by Hershey Entertainment and Resorts and became the Director of Food and Beverage for Hersheypark.

EVOLVING EATERTAINMENT

"I loved my work and really evolved my role into designing and delivering 'eatertainment' experiences for themed attractions," Steve said.

By 2003, The Hershey Company contacted Steve to work on Chocolate World, for which he later became general manager.

Through the past 20 years, Steve has worked on several Hershey's branded experiences including The Chocolate Tour Ride, and he currently leads strategic business operations at Chocolate World in both Hershey, Pennsylvania, and Times Square. Steve takes pride in his career growth and appreciates the early DU leadership experience that prepared him for success beyond college.

Steve currently resides in Hershey, Pennsylvania, with his wife of over 30 years, Michele. They spend their summers at their beach house in Ocean City, Maryland, enjoying the sun and life on the water.

You can connect with Steve at stevepsu1@gmail.com.

Undergraduate Report

The fall 2023 semester has been phenomenal for our undergraduates. From collective involvement, new improvements to the house, and brotherhood trips, it has been an eventful couple of months.

HOUSE UPDATES

The most noticeable change is our brand-new turf in the backyard. With special thanks to the generosity of our brothers, strong alumni network, and families, we were able to raise enough money to level and turf our beautiful yard! Specifically, a special thanks to Jason Pitts '92, Sam Seideman, Charlie Nino, and Gavin Pitts for taking the leading roles in this project.

With this new backyard, members spend loads of quality time together outside on nice days. There is ample room to toss a football around, play cornhole, and relax.

Additionally, the house gym has seen some major improvements, having been totally repainted and received brand-new equipment.

FALL ACTIVITY

Our primary philanthropy event is THON, which raises money for the Four Diamonds charity that battles pediatric cancer. Our newly elected THON Committee has had an outstanding start: we have already held multiple events at the house, highlighted by our yearly dunk tank fundraiser, a scary movie night in our party room, and powder puff football games. They are already setting records for fundraising. We are excited to see what events they plan next!

Earlier in the semester, our softball team was unable to repeat as champions, but their regular season success and hard work did not go unnoticed. Our intramural sports teams are heading into the playoffs in both flag football and 3-on-3 basketball. The football squad is looking for redemption after falling short last season, and the basketball team is looking like a championship contender.

CHAPTER PROGRESS IN 2023

FRATERNAL GROWTH

Recruitment Chairman Jack McNally once again did a fantastic job of bringing in a group of guys that represent the values this house holds so near and dear. Every semester, the brotherhood works together to host events that allow us to meet new guys and eventually welcome them into our family.

We recently held our executive board elections. Special thanks to our current executive board for all their hard work and dedication to this house. We wouldn't have accomplished many things we have recently done without them. We wish the best of luck to our new board members.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

FROM THE BOARD

Our board members would like to wish all DU alumni, family, and friends a happy holiday season. We hope to see you at an alumni event soon and wish you the best as you continue sharing those DU values and bonds we all hold dearly.

WHY THEY JOINED

"Going into recruitment week, I didn't even know if I wanted to join a fraternity—my parents were skeptical too. After meeting the brothers of DU, I knew that joining was the right decision. After a little bit of convincing, my parents were on board, and we all could not be happier."

—Hugh Kibera

"The second I stepped in the house for a tour and was immediately greeted by multiple brothers that were happy to see me, I knew I was in the right place."

—Austin Parisi

"I had a bid here and a bid to another house, and the deciding factor for me was when I asked myself, 'Where do I see myself two years from now?' The answer was here."

—Michael Renzulli
